City of Sarasota welcomes the public to meet and discuss the Engineering Design Criteria Manual (EDCM) 2023 update. The EDCM is prepared by the City of Sarasota to guide City staff, developers, and engineers on set design standards for roads, trails, sidewalks, and all other infrastructure within the public right-of-way. Its primary purpose is to establish uniform practices and design standards to ensure that the best information available is applied to project conditions.

This meeting is to inform the public of what the City is evaluating and to present findings of the existing conditions analysis, best practices, and opportunities for the design standards update. This meeting will provide an opportunity for City staff to collect input on what infrastructure challenges the community is currently facing that may be solved with updated design criteria.

Please let us know if you have comments on any of the above news items.
